The Consul General knows well the criminal tricks of the crimps and has already given orders that they be arrested if they continue to ply their dis-ANNUAL honest trade in and about the Con-

The Consul General says that sailors need not pay any money to shipping masters to obtain jobs on ships but that he has now and always has many applications for men from captains which he is unable to fill. Just what remedy is best for the bad conditions now existing has not been settled on. Captain Bray who is now at the helm of the Sallors' Home proposes a remedy. He has had an experience of nearly forty years and has come in contact with every class of "men who go down to sea in ships." He has been connected with religious work for many years. having been in command of the well known missionary packet "Morning Star." The directors have every con fidence in Captain Bray's management to create a new system in the home which will put it on a successful career.

"I would like to have fifty more rooms in the building," said Captain Bray. "The present facilities are not nearly enough for those who want to come, but I cannot turn them away and when there is no more room I give them a blanket and a place to sleep on

"As soon as we have American shipping laws and I am able to do shipping I intend to open a regular shipping office, and shall be ready to furnish crews to all vessels. There will be no dirty work in connection with the busi-Allan ELECTRIC ness and no sailor will have to pay anything for a job. Masters of vessels will of course be charged for crews. That is the rule in every port in the world and is only right. I shall also open a supply store in connection with the home. "Sailors who live here will be charged $6 per week for room and board, twenty-five cents for single meals and a dollar a week for a bed alone. Those who have no money will be allowed to stop here if they want to ship and when they go to sea they may settle out of their advance money. They will be put aboard at no cost to themselves and the cost to the ships will be a good deal less than half of what I am told is being pald in Honolulu now." Seamen who are familiar with the necessities of shipping say the employment of crimps is a survival from the days when sailors had to be forced to go to sea if they went at all. A

"The average Jack of the presen day is not a very sensible fellow, or he would not follow such a precarious mode of livelihood, but he is, at the same time, not so foolish as most people give him credit for being. He only wants to be treated like any ordinary man to develop into a respectable member of society.

"The letter of a captain, stating that shipping runners are a necessity. shows clearly that he is one of the old school. He says, also, that sailors can-not be trusted to come on board on time, without being rounded up like a mob of sheep. Now, there is a good opportunity of proving or disproving this contention right here in Honoiulu, and Captain Bray of the Sailors' Home, who having had some experience on shore, appears to me to know how to handle the matter. "When a vessel arrives here want-ing hands, if the captain would simply notify Captain Bray, instead of employing some longshore loafer, to get him a crew, I have no doubt that Captain Bray would be willing to put up a notice board at the Home, stating every morning, what ships wanted hands, where bound, wages and all other particulars. A seaman on shore SHEREBY GIVEN THAT here, who wanted to ship, would cal. down to the Home, examine the capital stock of the Hono-board, and when he had picked a Transit & Land Company, ship to suit, could either go on board and payable to J H and see the captain personally, or Parer, at 411 Fort street make arrangements through Captain

"The captain having left the selection of his crew to the crimp, gets his crew at the last minute.
